DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE RESOLUTION

Abolition Of Air Raids
Being Discussed.

ARMS MANUFACTURE
PROBLEMS

London, To-day.

At the meeting of the Bureau of the Disarmament Conference at Geneva yesterday afternoon, Monsieur Barthou, France, introduced another draft resolution calling for a continuance of the work of the Conference and a further pursuit of the investigations already undertaken, without prejudice to any private negotiations into which the Governments may wish to enter.

The resolution suggested, regarding security, that in view of the regional agreements concluded in Europe during the past year, the Political Commission should resume its investigations with a view to promoting further agreements of the same nature, and to determine their relationship, if any, to the General Convention.

That neither the Government nor M. FRESH DISPUTES MAY OCCUR

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received June 7, 5.15 a.m.)

Washington, To-day.

The National Recovery Administrator, General Hugh Johnson, has informed President Roosevelt of the steel industry strike threat developments. He said that the Steel Institute is meeting in New York to-day to discuss General Johnson's proposed concessions to labour, including the proposed industrial labour board, similar to the one which ended the automobile strike.

A representative of the Rank and File Committee said that the workers would not accept such a board.

Meanwhile, Messrs. Chrysler, Sloan Chapin MacCauley and the president of Packard Motors have told President Roosevelt that the enactment of the Wagner Labour Bill might start new disputes, crippling the industry. — United Press, per S.C. Gold Bar Co.

Spokesmen of 99 per cent. of the United States steel yesterday told the National Recovery Administration, General Hugh Johnson that they will never accept a closed shop. Therefore, a strike is virtually certain.

The New York Journal, "Iron Age" has placed steel operations in the United States at 60 per cent. as the result of strike fears and the desire to stock against low-priced contracts.

It is pointed out that consumers are fearing the strike threat more than the producers.

It is added that the present operation rates will probably be maintained for the remainder of the month. — United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

Subsequently, it is alleged, the arrested persons confessed connections with the Red Army as well as the intention to organise disturbances here and assassinate political leaders. — Reuter.

The optimistic trend on Wall Street continues.

AMERICAN NOT AT PEAK

Asbury Park, N.J., To-day.

Following the statement by Anell Hoffman, Max Baer's manager, that he would ask for a week's postponement of the fight against Primo Carnera for the world heavyweight boxing championship, scheduled for to-day week, on the grounds that his protegee has not reached the peak of condition, Bill Brown, N.Y.S.A.C. Commissioner, said that he will order a week's postponement if he finds Baer not in proper condition when he visits his camp to-day. — Reuter.

Critics are of the opinion that Baer would have been world champion, but for the fact that he was too interested in night clubs and high life. He has now decided to go into strict training, but the stains of an easy life are not easily washed away.

WINDSOR LAD BREAKS 1868 TRADITION

Colombo's Jockey On His Defeat.

"GOOD OLD PIP" ROARED
THOUSANDS

LONDON, TO-DAY.

OVER 1,000,000 PEOPLE INCLUDING THEIR MAJESTIES THE KING AND QUEEN, H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF YORK, AND OTHER MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL FAMILY, SAW THE DERBY WON YESTERDAY BY THE MAHARAJA OF RAJPIPLA'S WINDSOR LAD (SMIRKE) IN 2.34.0 WHICH EQUALLED THE RECORD FOR THE COURSE, ESTABLISHED BY LORD DERBY'S HYPERION (WESTON) IN 1933.

It is reckoned that bookmakers lost at least £1,000,000 when Lord Glanely's Colombo (Johnstone) failed to stay the distance. It was the first defeat of his career.

"Good Old Pip" roared the thousands as the Maharaja of Rajpipla led the winner into paddock.

The Maharaja was called to the Royal Box where he received the congratulations of the King.

"Togo" Johnstone, "Australia's Master Boy Jockey" and Colombo's jockey, said that Colombo, who started a raging hot favourite, had every chance, but weakened in the last half furlong.

Windsor Lad's victory recalls the prophecy of the famous gypsy, Lee, who died in April. She said that no horse with a W in his name would win the race in her lifetime, and she was right, as since Blue Gown won the 1868 classic Windsor Lad is the first horse with a W to win.

The weather was dull throughout, slight rain falling before the start. — Reuter.

NYE URGES INVESTIGATION

Washington, To-day.

Senator Tydings has introduced into the Senate a resolution authorising the President to negotiate a foreign war debts settlement on a final lump sum basis.

A second resolution, introduced by Senator Nye would authorise the President, subject to the ultimate approval of Congress, to negotiate with the heads of other Governments with a view to Disarmament and debt settlement based on a number of considerations, such as a nation's ability to pay, the amounts they have received and the losses they have incurred during the period the United States participated in the war. — Reuter.

BRITISH NOTE APPROVED

London, To-day.

The terms of the British note to the United States on war debts and the attitude of the British Government in regard to this question were approved in speeches in the House of Lords during a debate yesterday on the stabilisation of foreign exchanges.

Lord Reading said that if full payment were made this month and next December, the disturbance of world exchanges would have been such that Britain and other countries would have returned to the depression from which they have just happily emerged.

Washington, To-day.

Observers believe that the debt situation has jeopardised the Reciprocal Tariff Bill's bargaining possibilities because debtors will undoubtedly attempt to obtain debt concessions in the reciprocal Tariff discussions, whereas the Bill specifically states, "Nothing in this Act shall authorise the cancellation or reduction of debts." — United Press, per S. Bows Help For Better Styles

Effective For Day And Night Wear.

GIVES WIDENING EFFECT

London.
There are several striking styles in the evening mode for 1934, of which the two most important trends are the moulded line, and the fluffy feminine vogue. Cut and fabric determine which of these styles it shall be, and line and trimmings emphasise the effect.

The bow is the favourite decoration when the more feminine trend is stressed. The butterfly-bow is always attractive. Bows appeared last season in organdie, and on many day frocks, and relieved the severity of the tailor-made by accompanying blouses of white cambric. This season the bow appears in taffeta and satin as well as organdie. Many evening frocks of plain satin are adorned with bows of embroidered stiffened organza and satin ribbons.

A Widening Effect

In the case of the girl or young married woman, the slim silhouette is adhered to, and gaiety is provided by the bow, applied and worked in a variety of ways.
From a practical point of view the bow this season should prove most helpful, especially to the young, who can afford to widen their shoulders and hip-line. Any plain afternoon or evening frock can be given a new appearance by the bow-trimming.

Layers Of Taffeta

The "typhoon" silhouette is an amusing exaggeration and not too practical. But two or three graduated tiers forming a stiff cape-like berthe on the shoulders tying in a bow on the front is charming. Similar layers can fasten into three big loops at the back, low down; hence the stiffened hwa movement. Taffeta always forms a good bow; a dark printed crepe or satin dress can thus be trimmed with the popular taffeta a shade lighter.

Black And White

For summer days youthful and smart muslin dresses can carry out a black-and-white, pink-and-white, or any other colour scheme on the same lines. Again the bow idea is a happy one. Classic evening frocks of white satin look well with a folded fichu, and the ultra-large bow and ends finishing in the style of Louis days, but here the bow is soft and drooping.

For day-time the wide bow,

sometimes spread out in jabot form, is a favourite way of giving the lighter touch to dark dresses of taffeta or georgette. The crispness of cambric or the organza group always makes a perfect contrast to severe fabrics such as faille or taffeta. In this way the severe and more feminine styles are combined.

Falsecarding.

by Ely Culbertson.

Falsecarding is not very much of an art, but it is an art that every player should practice sometimes. Otherwise he will gain the reputation of being absolutely wooden. If the opponents can believe every one of his plays their line of attack is frequently made much easier for them.

In the following hand the West player was noted chiefly for the fact that every card he played was honest, and consequently when the critical moment in the hand occurred the Declarer was not in very much doubt as to his proper play. South. Dealer.

1—North belongs to a school of players who believe that a no-trump response is weaker than a suit response, holding that the latter should not be made without at least 1½ honour-tricks. Incidentally this theory is held by only a very few players, and these not soundly grounded in the theory of systematic bidding. Obviously one heart is the correct bid.

2—Hoping that the hand will eventually be played at notrump.

3—A slight underbid, but after all, a reversal of suits is in itself a sign of strength. South does not hold quite enough to justify a Force.

4—An underbid. Four hearts is the proper response.

5—East decides to enter the bidding since it is now fairly clear that the eventual contract will be in a suit.

6—South might make a Forcing Pass at this point out he knows the caliber of the East player and feels that no large penalty can possibly be obtained.

7—South finally comes to the conclusion that his partner holds at least 5 trumps. It seems as though there is almost certainly some play for the Slam.

8—Somewhat inexplicable but East feels that he must try to mislead the Declarer as to the location of the heart honour, if any.

The West player, for reasons best known to himself, decided to open a club. Obviously the King of diamonds would have defeated the contract immediately, but the club Opening gave the Declarer a chance. He ruffed the Queen in his own hand and immediately laid down the Ace of trumps.

When East failed to follow suit he felt a slight shock, but the spades still offered an avenue of escape. The Queen and King were played from the Dummy and West played on them his 9 and Knave.

If made by anyone addicted to falsecarding these plays would mean nothing, but this particular West opponent had never been known to falsecard in his life. South therefore did not have to stretch his imagination to any great extent to find the proper play.

He led the last spade from Dummy and finessed the 8-spot. West, of course, ruffed and he was unable thereafter to obtain any more tricks.

As my colleague Mr. William J. Huake would say, "Be wise as a serpent and harmless as a dove."

Amusements Cinema Notes

"MIDNIGHT CLUB"—KING'S THEATRE

"Midnight Club," a melodrama taken from one of E. Phillips Oppenheim's stories, featuring George Raft, Clive Brook, Alison Skipworth and Helen Vinson, is Paramount's current release.

Raft plays the role of an American detective and is called to London by Scotland Yard to assist in breaking up a gang of jewel thieves. During the course of the picture, Raft, who was known as a dancer before he went to Hollywood, gives several highly entertaining dances.

Clive Brook, who has been playing the detective in many Sherlock Holmes' stories, plays the hunted man this time. Miss Vinson is the girl in the case, while Allison Skipworth plays the role of an English Duchess.

"THE SHOW-OFF"—ALHAMBRA THEATRE

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has never produced a more humorous picture than "The Show-Off," featuring Spencer Tracy, is the current attraction at the Alhambra Theatre.

The film, adapted from the famous stage play which rocked Broadway with laughter and which broke all attendance records, abounds in comedy situations that come to a habitual braggart. It is one of Tracy's finest roles.

The supporting cast includes such favourites as Madge Evans, Henry Wadsworth, Lois Wilson, Grant Mitchell, and Claude Gillingwater. Charles F. Riesner, who has made some of the greatest screen comedy hits directed.

"LOOKING FOR TROUBLE"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

"Looking for Trouble," featuring the two comedians, Spencer Tracy and Jack Oakie, is United Artists' current release now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

The picture, directed by William Wellman, is filled with excitement and humour.

Constance Cummings, Arline Judge, and Judith Wood lend excellent support.

"THE MAN FROM CHICAGO"—STAR THEATRE

"The Man from Chicago," featuring Bernard Nedell, Albert Whelan, Joyce Kennedy and Dodd Watts, is the British International Picture's production now showing at the Star Theatre.

The film, which is taken from the play by Reginald Simpson, concerns racketeers and gunmen battling with police in the open streets. It is thrilling and highly entertaining.

"TERROR ABOARD"—ORIENTAL THEATRE

"Terror Aboard," Paramount's thrilling drama of murder on the high seas, is the current attraction at the Oriental Theatre.

The action takes place in the Pacific Ocean, where a freighter catches sight of a drifting yacht which is apparently deserted. An investigation reveals that the entire crew have been murdered and

EX-KING MISTAKEN FOR BANDIT

Alfonso's Adventure In The Sudan.

STALKED BY ARAB CORPS

Alexandria. Ex-King Alfonso of Spain has had an exciting adventure while hunting big game in the Sudan.

He and his party were shooting along the banks of the Dinder River near the Abyssinian Border. Suddenly they sighted a large band of men in the distance.

Hurriedly the royal party took cover.

Evidently they had been seen, but the strangers did not seem disposed to attack. Instead they also took cover—and waited.

Throughout the day the two parties stalked each other with great caution. Then, towards nightfall they came face to face—but instead of shots there followed explanations, handshakes, laughter.

The strangers proved to be a patrol of the Eastern Arab Corps. They had mistaken the king and his friends for marauders from Abyssinia.—Reuter.

from this point the picture tells the story of the murders and the motive behind them, reaching a thrilling climax when the murderer is brought to justice by an aviator.

John Halliday, Charlie Ruggles, Neil Hamilton, Shirley Grey, Verree Teasdale and Jack LaRue play the leading roles.

"SONG PARADE"—CENTRAL THEATRE

"Song Parade," a Chinese picture, featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sit Kok Sin, is the Central Theatre's current attraction.

The picture, produced by the Unique Film Company, is considered the "greatest Chinese all talking and singing picture," yet produced in China.

CURVES BEST BOX-OFFICE LODESTONE

Appeal of Marcus Show At Queen's

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANTS

What is the most potent box-office magnet? Pretty girls and lots of them. Such is the uncontroversial opinion of Entrepreneur A. B. Marcus, whose new Marcus Show is due at the Queen's for a Sunday matinee this week. The form of entertainment specialising in the exhibition of personable females will survive all mechanical forms, is the belief of the showman.

"With the perfection of motion pictures, such as colour and the third dimension, television and radio, it will be possible to provide drama and comedies by synthetic means that will relegate flesh-and-blood plays to the scrap heap within the next decade or so," said Marcus recently.

"But the celluloid and ether will never give a customer the same kick as seeing a beautiful girl in person. There is no other element in the show business that is equal as a box-office lodestone."

Marcus contends that figures—no play on words intended—prove his contention. The immense fortunes that have been achieved in exploiting the girl-song-and-dance style of entertainment from "Black Crook" to "La Vie Paree," the current Marcus opus, are cited. The Marcus Show is an example. After 26 years of continuous operation the expanded outfit is still regarded among showmen as a sure cure for ticket buyers' apathy.

Over a quarter of a century ago Marcus started operations with a more or less meritorious harlequinade consisting of seven persons. Now ten times that number are on the pay roll. Whether as a vaudeville headliner or as a major legitimate attraction, the Marcus Show has for many seasons distinguished itself as a production the public wants to see, albeit Impresario Marcus has no illusions that the Pulitzer Prize for the uplift of drama will be tossed in his lap.

Two cases of small-pox, eight cases of diphtheria, two cases of typhoid fever, five cases of meningitis, and one case of puerperal fever were reported in the Colony during the week ending June 2. During the same period two persons died from small-pox, two from diphtheria, one from typhoid fever, one from meningitis, and one from puerperal fever. The number of deaths from tuberculosis were 47.

ENGLAND MUST WIN FIRST TEST AT NOTTINGHAM TO-MORROW

INSTANCES OF "DUCKS" BY DON BRADMAN

BOWLED BY FULL TOSS IN TEST.

ABORIGINE'S DISTINCTION

IT falls to the lot of every great batsman, sooner or later in his career, to be bowled for a duck.

Bradman experienced the feeling at Cambridge, and the name J. G. W. Davis, a former Tonbridge boy, became familiar to all cricketers for a few days.

It was the first time Bradman had had his stumps shattered without scoring in England.

There was quite a sensation in December 1932, when Bowes, the Yorkshire bowler, dismissed him in the second Test match in Australia for a "blub." But it was the only wicket Bowes took in the Tests, and the ball was a full toss!

Griffith, the West Indies fast bowler, clean bowled Bradman for a "duck" in the Sydney Test of 1931.

In November of the same year Bradman was caught off Gilbert's bowling—Gilbert is the Queensland aborigine—in an inter-State match before he had troubled the scorers.

But the instances are rare. And there is no record of a "pair of spectacles" for this super-batsman.

When Bradman was out for his "duck" at Cambridge, the crowd were so astonished that they clean forgot to cheer J. G. W. Davies who bowled him.

Grimmett philosophically Bradman returned to the pavilion amid a deathlike silence.

AUSTRALIANS' 500 FOLLOWERS

Whole Families Tour With Team

CRICKETERS PAID IN STERLING WHILE IN ENGLAND

Five hundred Australians—men, women and children—landed in England in one week recently for the Tests. Whole families will follow the Australian cricket team up and down the country throughout the summer.

Mr. H. Bushby, manager of the team, gave this interesting evidence of the enthusiasm which the coming struggle has aroused in Australia.

The Australian manager disposed of the suggestion that members of the team are disturbed by the discovery that an Australian pound is worth only 15s in England, as they are paid in the currency of the country they are in at the time.

Each player received £100 before leaving home. He will be paid another £350 in England and the remaining £150 will be due to him on his return home, provided a satisfactory report is made by the manager.

GREATEST NO. 2 BATSMAN

Sutcliffe has been slightly disturbing. One has always felt of Sutcliffe that if once his luck deserted him, or his nerve cracked, he would drop out of cricket like a stone. He has never had the same quickness of eye or perfection of method as other great Test match players. But he will play, of course, in the first Tests against Australia, and his marvellous capacity for big-match play may easily re-establish him as the best No. 2 in the world, in which case he is at once our greatest asset.—A. M. Crawley.

AUSTRALIA AT BEST FOR OVAL GAME

WALTERS MAY SKIPPER ENGLAND ELEVEN

WELL BALANCED SIDE

ENGLAND HAVE BEEN DEALT A CRUEL BLOW BY THE INJURY TO R. E. S. WYATT, WHO HAD BEEN CHOSEN TO LEAD THE TEAM AGAINST AUSTRALIA AT TRENT BRIDGE TO-MORROW, AND A FINAL DECISION ON WHETHER HE WILL PLAY OR NOT WILL BE MADE SOME TIME TO-DAY. SHOULD IT BE DECIDED THAT THE SLIGHTLY FRACTURED THUMB IS TOO SERIOUS, C. F. WALTERS WILL LEAD THE SIDE.

The England selectors have acquitted themselves well, and the attack with Nichols, Bowes, and Kenneth Farnes as the fast bowlers, Verity and Mitchell as the slow bowlers for a sticky wicket, and Geary and Hammond as the medium to fast bowlers looks more formidable than the Australian attack, which A. E. R. Gilligan describes as much more dangerous than it looks.

No fewer than ten of the fourteen selected players are capable of scoring centuries. R. E. S. Wyatt, the Nawab of Pataudi, C. F. Walters, Sutcliffe, Hammond, Hendren, Leyland, Ames, Nichols and Verity being the players in question.

SHOULD WYATT BE AVAILABLE IT LOOKS AS IF FARNES, THE YOUNG ESSEX PLAYER, PATSY HENDREN, AND MITCHELL (IF IT IS A HARD WICKET) WILL BE DROPPED IN ORDER TO COMPLETE THE ELEVEN.

The first thing to remember is that the match is going to last four days, and that it will be no good England "playing for a draw."

Australia must always be more formidable in the fifth Test match than in the first, for by then not only has teamwork developed into a high art, but those men new to English pitches have become thoroughly at home on them. Assuming that the foremost players on each side are fit, England's chance at Nottingham is likely to be the best of the lot.

It has been possible to arrive at several more or less rational conclusions about the Australians by this time, and the most important is that whatever he may be on Bulli soil, Grimmett remains a public menace against all but the best and most quick-footed of batsmen in England. The technical reasons need not be gone into; the fact stands out a mile. Secondly, it is apparent that Grimmett's chief henchman must be O'Reilly. Wall and Ebeling are both good, strong, honest workers, who may well dismiss the best of batsmen when the ball is red, but the foundation of the Australian attack must be Grimmett and O'Reilly, whose chief weapon is the ball that is spun or cut from leg.

The One Answer

To the most dangerous of all types of bowling (with the exception of the very fastest) there is one counter—a left-handed batsman.

Three left-handed batsmen are too many for the team provided they are in form. It would not be possible to say this if Australia had a bowler such as Fairfax, whose stock ball is the one that turns away from the left-hander—the normal off-break—but the only accredited off spinner Australia possesses is Fleetwood-Smith, and although he may prove to be a considerably better bowler by the end of August than most people are disposed to believe at the moment, it will be a tactical point to England if she forces him into the side by playing two or three left-handers.

One of the better signs of the season thus far is the good form of Leyland. Both he and Paynter have been through the fire and proved themselves fighters as well as just fine batsmen. Then there is James Langridge—all the more precious for being an all-rounder.

We had all hoped that Larwood would become thoroughly attuned in time to play against Australia on his own pitch, but now the limelight will fall upon Nichols, in whose favour it is that he is a good aggressive left-handed bat as well as a fast bowler of perseverance and stamina.

Sutcliffe's Partner

The modest performances of C. F. Walters have at the moment rather sent him out of the market, but how fickle is popular favour. He made 29 and 9 against Oxford, but did not Bradman fall at Cambridge? It is true Walters did not come off against the Australians at Worcester, but it is a hard job batting on such a side as his was in that match. On the first morning when Walters and the Nawab were together there was some class battling to be seen at any rate. Walters is the type England wants, and indeed must have, to partner Sutcliffe. One Sutcliffe is admirable, but no side can open with two in a four-day match.

Headley Verity, our Yorkshireman, is considered second only to Wally Hammond as England's best all-rounder.

In selecting England's bowlers the selectors will be at something of a disadvantage, because according to the identity of England's attack Australia can choose one, two, or even three left-handers. But where England have the pull is that where the Australians do not seem to have a top-class off-break bowler to deal with whatever left-handers England may choose, she will have the whole field of English bowling to draw from.

Equally, England wants someone in addition to Hammond, who makes the ball move in from the off. Worst of all, the rules only provide for eleven aside. Captains have cursed left-handers, but their curses will be nothing to those of the selectors this summer. More perhaps can be done to win the rubber in the Committee room than on the field of play.

Fleetwood-Smith Freak Bowler

FLEETWOOD-SMITH is a freak bowler. Later, at practice after an illness, he casually used his left arm to ease the strain on the right, and found that he could break the orthodox virtues of length and direction to his unusual methods. Arthur Mailey, whom he accompanied on the recent American tour, and W. A. Oldfield, the Test wicket-keeper, have each pronounced him "the goods."

As a schoolboy he was a moderately successful right-hand slow

Don Bradman, Alan Kippax, and Clarence Grimmett on whom much will depend in the series of five Tests, the first one of which commences at Trent Bridge to-morrow.

D. R. JARDINE ON TESTS

£5,000 Fee From London Newspaper

LARWOOD OFFERED £2,000

D. R. Jardine has been retained by the London "Evening Standard" to report the forthcoming Test matches in England on a fee of £5,000.

Cabling to the "Times of India" E. H. D. Sewell says:

Cricketers behind the scenes are much intrigued to know whether Larwood, even if it will play in the Tests.

He has received an offer of £2,000 to report the Tests. Can a professional refuse that and accept £40 as a playing fee.

I learn from a good source that he is contemplating to decline to play in the Test matches, out of loyalty to Jardine, and in view of the decision to prohibit "body-line" bowling. On the other hand, he owes a duty to Notts who have allotted a "benefit" match to him in 1935.

Jardine's fee of £5,000 to report the Tests is causing purists to ask where amateurism ends and professionalism begins, but cricket is not rugby or rowing.

GRIMMETT MAY STAY IN ENGLAND

Question of Breach of Contract

TO AID FAIRFAX SCHOOL

The cricket school run by Alan Fairfax in London may be strengthened at the end of the summer by the addition of "Clarrie" Grimmett, his old Australian Test colleague.

It is known that negotiations are proceeding, but a point to be settled is this: Will Grimmett be permitted by his contract to remain in England?

Grimmett, like all the others now on the tour, has undertaken not to return to England within two years for the purpose of playing cricket.

But is coaching at an indoor school playing cricket? People who should know say that it is not, and that Grimmett would be justified in accepting Fairfax's offer.

HOW TERM "ASHES" WAS COINED

England's 7 Runs Defeat At Oval in 1882

N.B.—The Body will be cremated and the Ashes Taken to Australia.

The term "Ashes" was coined after the 7-runs defeat of England at the Oval in 1882, and the above "In Memoriam" published by the Sporting Times.

In the following year when the team, captained by the Hon. J. B. Bligh wiped out this defeat, a number of women in Melbourne sent him some ashes in an earthenware jar, and they have been jealously guarded ever since.

ENGLAND'S WIN AT NOTTINGHAM.

England won the first Test of the 1930 series at Nottingham by 93 runs, but lost the Ashes by 2 matches to 1.

The scores at Nottingham were: England: 270 (Hobbs 74, A. P. F. Chapman 52, R. W. V. Robins 50 not out, C. V. Grimmett 5 for 105) 302 (Hobbs 74, Sutcliffe 58 retired hurt, Hendren 72, C. V. PHENOMENON OF CRICKET

Will Bradman Beat His Own Record?

SECRETS OF HIS SUCCESS

(By P. F. WARNER)

What are the secrets of the amazing success of Don Bradman?

Bradman has immense natural skill. An idealism which urges him to learn everything he possibly can and to profit by lessons learnt. Tremendous concentration of mind. And, too, he is in perfect physical condition, while he has a cool, calm temperament.

As to the actual technique of his play, he is blessed with a wonderful eye, steel-like wrists, and small and beautifully neat feet, which make him exceptionally quick in moving back or forward to the ball. Every stroke is fully developed, and, above all, he has an amazingly strong defence, which is the keynote of all successful batsmanship in first-class cricket.

Masterful Hooking

Bradman's hooking of anything the least short is masterful. He misses nothing on his pads; he off-drives brilliantly; but, above all, the cut, both late and square, is his glory. I have never seen finer or safer cutting, for he is always on top of the ball.

Again, he watches the ball very closely, and his extreme quickness of foot enables him almost to dictate the length to the bowler.

FIRST TEST IN ENGLAND

Historic Letter Written In Tavistock Hotel

UNPLEASANTNESS OVERCOME

THE Tavistock Hotel, which, with other property in Covent Garden, has been recommended for demolition, has an interesting link with the first Test Match played in England.

As most cricketers know, the Australian side that first visited England in 1880 was rather unpopular on account of an incident at Sydney two years previously, when the English team over there had to be content to play local teams.

However, in July Mr. George Alexander, the Australians' manager, wrote from the Tavistock Hotel, where the team were staying, to say how disappointed they would be if they had to return to Australia without meeting a representative side.

Lord Harris tells the sequel. C. W. Alcock came to him when they were playing at Canterbury and implored him to get together a side to meet the Australians. And in September the first Test Match on English soil was played at the Oval.

Mr. Alexander, by the way, is living in Australia, and, at the age of 80, still goes to cricket matches.

WOODFULL OUT TO REPEAT 1930 TRIUMPH

PEN SKETCHES OF HIS TEAM

WORLD RECORD-HOLDER

"Bill" Woodfull skippered the 1930 invaders to victory in the vital Fifth Test at the Oval to secure the Ashes by 2 matches to 1. He, however, failed to stop D. R. Jardine's team from regaining the urn in the 1932-3 series in which England drew level with Australia with 51 wins in the series.

Here are pen-sketches of Woodfull's team this year:

W. M. WOODFULL (Victoria), captain—Age 37, schoolmaster. One of the most popular captains ever to take a team to England. Won the "Ashes" in 1930. Pains-taking and a shrewd tactician. Made his first trip to England under H. L. Collins and returned with an average of 57.9. Dour opening batsman with a rock-like defence.

D. G. BRADMAN (N.S.W.), vice-captain—Age 25. The record-breaker. Made highest individual first-class score—452 not out against Queensland in 1929-30 season. Highest individual score in Anglo-Australian Tests—334 at Leeds in 1930. In this tour scored 2,960 runs and averaged 98.6, and in the Tests averaged 139.14 for seven completed innings. Holds record for Test centuries (seven) by Australians against England.

PONSFORD GIVEN OUT BUT CARRIES BAT FOR 200

Playing against Cambridge University, Ponsford was involved in an unusual incident. He was called on by Brown to run a single, but a swift return to the wicket-keeper saw him given out. After starting back to the pavilion it was discovered that the wicket was not broken, and Ponsford returned to complete his second hundred.

W. H. Ponsford has made a wonderful comeback this season. He once had a finger broken by Larwood in a Test.

STRAINED HEART

MR. HEARD LOOKS TO HAVE MORE WINNERS

The Carp Expected To Repeat Win

MISS LOIS FEARON ABSENTEE

BY YARRAMAN

A slightly strained heart has caused Mr. Norman Deitz, leading rider at the Valley for the first half of the season, to follow his doctor's orders by announcing that he will not be riding at Sunday's Macao Race Meeting.

There is so shortage of entries for the seven races at Sunday's meeting, and I understand that the majority of ponies entered will run.

For the first race I fancy Potsdam as a very likely winner. This is the Novices' event, and Mr. W. H. Choy can be depended on to secure the best out of this very likely pony. As a second I fancy Sporting Chance with Mr. Tang Man-wa up. Other likely runners here are Heart's Joy (Mr. F. F. Li), Sea View (Mr. Yue Shun-wa) and Young Commander (Mr. H. Y. Liang). There is, however, a possibility that Mr. Liang and Mr. Tang may exchange mounts before the Meeting.

THE CARP AGAIN

I understand that Mr. "Johnnie" Heard, who rode remarkably well last Saturday, will take out The Carp in the second race, and after his great display in the mud last Saturday, this game little pony should record his second win in succession.

Chesterfield and Panama (Mr. Butler), however, should offer formidable opposition.

Mr. Gilbert Harriman will be riding Sarabande in this race, and may not be far away at the finish. Mr. Heard's second mount for the day is likely to be Powerful King, on which he recorded a first-class win on Saturday.

In this race Powerful King will be up against Helter Skelter, another of Mr. Heard's winning mounts on Saturday, and with Mr. Butler up, Racing Triumph can be expected to do something.

The fourth race should prove a very open event. Mr. S. Y. Liang will be taking out Bay View, which looks a winner, while Mr. Heard or Mr. P. P. Botelho will take out Daylight Eve, which should give Bay View a very close run. If he does not beat him. Other good runners in this race are Macaroni (Mr. Harriman) and Wakefield (Mr. Butler).

PONIES WRONGLY ENTERED

There has been some discussion over the fifth event. This is a race for non-winning griffins, and it has been put forward that both West Parade and Gold Bullion have already recorded a first place.

In reality West Parade won under Mr. Paul Botelho in the Commonwealth Handicap over 1½ miles in which he was unbacked in the second leg of the "double" at the Third Extra Meeting at the Valley. Gold Bullion, with Mr. Pote-Hunt up, won the Kellett Handicap over a mile at the Second Extra Meeting at the Valley. If these two ponies are barred, as they should be, Racing Triumph, which, I understand, is starting in both this and the third race, will have a good chance with Mr. Butler up, while Royal Flush (Mr. Heard) will be a very safe place bet.

Tolschan should have no difficulty in winning the sixth race, which is a novelty in the form of a Mafoo's Race. Britannic Hall, an old 1930 griffin, looks a dark horse. Nothing has been heard of this pony for some time, but in his time he has won $900 in stakes, and rumour says that it is owing to an exceptional burst of fitness that he has been entered.

Miss Fearon, the champion lady rider at Macao this season, will not make an appearance in the Ladies' Race, having left for Shanghai for her summer vacation. Joy for a place, and Young Commander may win, although his mander as an outsider.

First Derby Win Proves Elusive

'COLOMBO THIRD'

London, To-day.

A length separated Gordon Richards, England's Champion jockey, from achieving his ambition of winning the Derby on Lord Woolavington's Easton, at 100 to 9. He ran second to the Maharaja of Rajpipla's Windsor Lad who, with Smirke up at 15 to 2, recorded the first Derby win for both owner and jockey.

Lord Glanely's Colombo, hailed as the wonder horse of 1934 and supported at 11 to 8, with W. "Togo" Johnstone, the Australian "Master Boy Jockey" up ran third, a neck behind Easton.

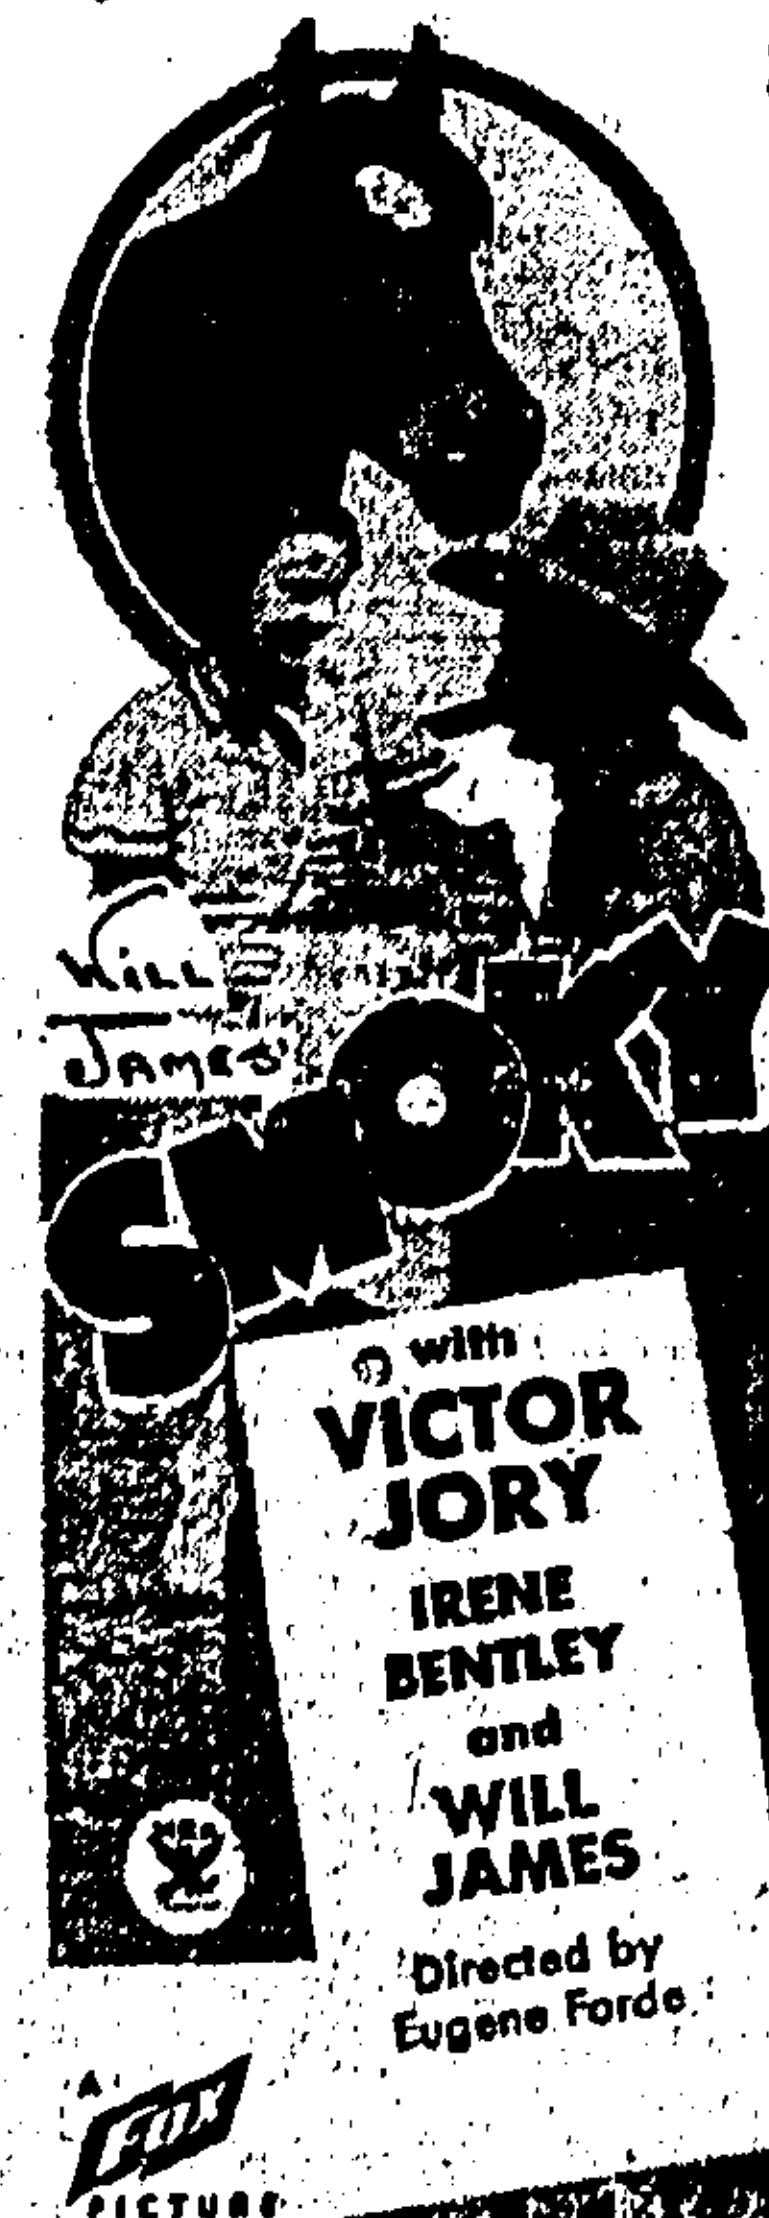

Nineteen horses paraded for yesterday's classic.

Special place betting prices were Windsor Lad, 18 to 8, Colombo 4 to 6, and Easton proportionate.—Reuter.

SMOKY... A tornado of horse-flesh with the devil in his heart and dynamite in his hoofs... He loved with the loyalty of a human and brought romance to a pair of lovers.

COMING TO KING'S SHORTLY.

"SMOKY" FILMEDWild Horse Foaled In West Proves Killer*UNDYING FRIENDSHIP FOR ONE MAN

Exceedingly well photographed and dramatically screened "Smoky," the latest Fox Film release, which is coming to the King's Theatre shortly, brings to the screen the story of a wild horse immortalised in Will James's best seller of the same name.

Irene Bentley and Victor Jory have the romantic roles, while Will James himself plays a prominent part in the picture.

"Smoky" is the story of a wild horse foaled on the plains of the West. Branded as a killer, he is known for his hatred of men. Only one man can understand him and to him the horse shows undying devotion. This friendship of man and beast is the basis of the film.

So great is this devotion that when "Smoky" is stolen his friend puts aside everything, including the love for his sweetheart, to go in search of him. In the years that follow "Smoky"—still undiscovered by his friend—attains fame as a rodeo horse, and then sinks to the depths of a rubbish man's cart horse, abused and forgotten.

The final reunion of the man and horse brings the film to a dramatic conclusion that stands high in the annals of film drama.

The film portrays the West with all its panoramic beauty, and depicts with outstanding realism the colourful vigour of the rodeo exhibitions.

The featured roles are cleverly portrayed. Victor Jory, who was last seen in "State Pair" and "The Devil's In Love," gives a splendid characterisation as the devoted master of the wild animal. Irene Bentley took a prominent part in "My Weakness" and enacts her part in "Smoky" equally well.

TEACHERS' DAY IN HONG KONG.Sir William Hornell's Address.*FIRST LOCAL CELEBRATION.

Addressing Chinese school teachers at the celebration of "Teachers' Day," Sir William Hornell, C.I.E., Vice-Chancellor of the Hong Kong University, at the King's Theatre yesterday pointed out the importance of the study of Chinese and the necessity of acquiring lucidity of expression in their own language.

Sir William urged the teachers to remember that they were dealing with living material, not automatic machines, and that their contact with their pupils must be vital.

Sir Shou-sun Chow and many prominent educationists were present at the meeting which was presided over by Mr. T. Y. Chan, who explained that although the Chinese Teachers' Day was observed first some three years ago in China, this was the first time there had been a local celebration.

RAILWAY VERSUS SHIPPING.Canton-Hankow Link A Hindrance To Trade.*CHINESE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DISCUSSION.

The question of linking the Canton-Kowloon Railway with the future Canton-Hankow Railway was debated by a record attendance at the annual meeting of the Hong Kong Chinese Chamber of Commerce, held yesterday.

Mr. Wong Kwong-tin was in the chair. Apprehension, based on the unprecedented depression of the Hong Kong-Canton shipping business and competition from the railway, manifested itself in the discussion.

Members connected with Chinese shipping voiced strong disagreement with the Chairman's idea that the early completion of the Hankow Railway should benefit the local trade. It was indicated that the completion of the Hankow Railway might considerably affect the shipping business.

Mr. Li Ho-tung seconded by Mr. Chan Yu-shan moved that Mr. Wong's resolution concerning the Hankow Railway should not be in-

The early birds of the annual flock of trans-Atlantic fliers already are fluttering their wings impatiently at Floyd Bennett Field, New York. No less than six aviators were recently eagerly awaiting favourable weather conditions before gambling with death in attempts to make non-stop flights to various parts of Europe. George R. Pond and Cesare Sadeletti were disappointed last year and again this year in their attempt to make a non-stop flight to Rome. The Adamowicz brothers, Benjamin and Joseph, will try to reach Warsaw, Poland, in one hop. The lone wolf of the flock is Joseph James, of Chicago, who plans a solo flight from Chicago to Lithuania. He is tuning his plane at New York.

ROOSEVELT AND ROYALTIESSenator Queries His Book Profits.*ESTIMATED AT $1,000,000

Washington. The publication of President Roosevelt's new book, "On Our Way," has caused Senator Schall, Republican from Minnesota, to wonder whether royalties accruing to the President from its sales might total $1,000,000 which, coupled with his salary would give him an annual income greater than that of 'persons he has exposed.'

Senator Schall, who described the book as 'an obliging contribution to our dismay,' asserted that Mr. Roosevelt's first book sold for $5—per copy, and that 'someone has said that 500,000 copies were sold.'

Working out the President's royalty at 40 per cent. on each copy, the Senator asked:— "In this case did the author receive a royalty of $1,000,000 which with his salary of $75,000 would be more than any of the salaries and royalties received by the other persons he has exposed."

Certainly, all the cards should be laid on the table, he said, 'and if it is wrong for Mr. Schall to receive $300,000 in royalties and salary and for movie stars to have contracts for $200,000 a year and their incomes exposed to the public gaze as has been done, then surely we have a right to know the royalties if any paid to an author even though he be the President of the United States.—Reuter.

Aviation and MotoringRAILWAYS' AIR TRAFFIC BID*Independent Lines' Alarm.*FIRST STAGE IN NEW "WAR"

London.

Independent air lines in Great Britain are considering action to defend themselves against what they consider to be the attempt of the railway companies to win control of inland air services.

Recently, the four mainline railway companies and Imperial Airways agreed to form a new company, with a nominal capital of £50,000, to provide air services in the British Isles and elsewhere, and to form connecting links with the services of Imperial Airways.

Since then the principal booking agencies have given up taking bookings for the independent air lines operating in this country. Those wishing to travel by one of these lines must book direct with the company concerned.

This question is now being taken up by the air transport section of the Society of British Aircraft Constructors, and a report is being prepared for consideration at a meeting of the section to-morrow. Possible action will depend entirely upon the nature of that report.

Defence Bodies Formed. The more important independent air lines include: Hillman's Airways, British Air Navigation Company, Spartan Air Lines, Portsmouth and Isle of Wight Company, Highland Airways, Air Ferries, and Midland and Scottish Air Ferries. They consider that the railways are determined to prevent a recurrence in the air of what happened on the roads, and that they are attempting to win a secure place for themselves in air traffic.

Two associations have been formed to protect the interests of the independent air lines—the Society of British Air Operating Companies and the Air Transport Association.

AIR TRANSPORT IN BRITAIN.Representatives Meeting Revived.

London.

The air transport section of the Society of British Aircraft Constructors was revived as a result of a meeting at the society's headquarters in Albemarle-street, W. recently.

About 20 representatives of air transport concerns and airport operators attended the meeting. It was decided to form two divisions, one for air transport operators and the other for those interested in airports and aerodromes. The latter will include municipal aerodrome interests.

London.

In the field of public service transport last year saw still further progress on the part of the trolley bus at the expense of the tram. Nearly 16,000,000 more passengers were carried by the former, while the older system lost over 214,000,000. Trolley buses have now been in use long enough to show their many advantages, view and in the shape of reduced both from the passengers' point of running costs for operating authorities.

There are now in Britain one public board (London), 23 municipalities and local authorities, and 5 private companies operating trolley buses, while some 20 other authorities have obtained power to run this type of vehicle. Nearly 300 buses are already in service and several new fleets are on order. These include twelve 6-wheel double-deck Sunbeams for Bournemouth and 4-and 6-wheelers of the same make for Portsmouth. Something like £3,000,000 is said to be invested in trolley buses by operating authorities, and this figure is rapidly increasing as new fleets are put into service.

The change from year to year in what is called 'news value' is one of the most reliable indications of the direction of public opinion. New circumstances set people thinking of the implications of incidents and facts that would a short time before have passed entirely without notice. The other day for example there was mention of the sale of old vessels. With hundreds of ships laid up in port there was nothing in that that would have made a paragraph a year or two ago. But when it is noted that the scrap iron is all going to Japan, the fact acquires 'news value.' One notices that other scrap iron is going the same way; and cargoes of pig iron as well. Japan has to buy her raw materials; and ships have to be built. But does a sudden increase of purchases mean new cargo vessels to compete with ours, or new cruisers? We do not know; but we are interested. There is something in the political air of the moment that marks a change from the old happy-go-lucky attitude to war which was content to begin to make preparations after war had been declared, and to buy everything at what used to be called 'Government prices'—anything from fifty to a hundred per cent. above what the same things would have cost six months before.

Last week an American Senator proposed that the Government should not be content with its stock of gold and silver, but should encourage the industries connected with other metals by laying in a reserve stock at present low prices sufficient for the next war. The proposal is not so unreasonable as might appear at first glance, if we start by taking for granted that there is going to be another war more or less on the lines of the last. It amounts to no more than spreading over the preceding years the vast costs that have in the past been handed on to succeeding years. What we call our 'old Consols', on which three per cent. or two and a half per cent. interest has been paid ever since are a legacy of the Napoleonic wars, with something added for the Crimea. And that is after many years of budget surpluses. A great Engineer, Sir Thomas Holland, who is Vice-Provost of Edinburgh University, the other day gave it as his opinion that if Engineers continued for another year or two to advance at the same rate as they had been doing recently, all our armaments would be obsolete before the next war happened. We are reminded of the old saying that the nations spend the periods of peace in 'preparing for the last war.' In any case it is clear that the methods of our own 'last war' require either enormous reserves of metal that would represent a very unremunerative investment, or else open access to sources of supply.

This is what has suggested resort to what has been dubbed 'the mineral sanction'—a scheme to cut off importations of minerals from any country that has gone to war, or that is obviously making preparations to fight. The Paraguay-Bolivia embargo is a tentative experiment in this method, handicapped by the fact that the war has long been proceeding without any interference, and that the negotiations have all had to be done in a hurry. Most people assume that the attempt will be ineffectual; but in that case the real moral is the need for some organ of collective action that will be genuinely worldwide; with the further moral that the friends of peace must show the same energy and foresight as the makers of munitions. We know quite enough about these great businesses to infer a great deal more as to their readiness to co-operate with each other in dealing with the 'rush orders' that may be expected.

It is quite a mistake to regard all these proposals as impractical in themselves. The authority already quoted, Sir Thomas Holland, read a paper to the British Association five years ago, in which he showed that it would be quite possible to control the importation of minerals, which have bulk and are therefore difficult to conceal; and that no country produces all that would be required. There would be the problem of distinguishing between a moderate supply for industry and the excessive supply for war; but that is only a difficulty to those who are not in the trade. The one essential condition is that the restriction must apply equally all round, with no neutrals to play the game of honest broker. The impracticality is entirely political. If it is possible to control wheat by an international plan intended to raise the price against the consumer of a necessary of life, there would be no technical trouble in controlling metals. The new trend towards 'planning' can be greatly extended.

A lecture on "Hsuan-Chang, the great Chinese Pilgrim of old, and his accounts of Buddhism in India" will be given at this evening's public meeting held by the Manuk Lodge of the Theosophical Society. The speaker will be Dr. K. L. Reichelt of the Tao Fong Shan Christian Institute, Shatin, and the meeting will commence at 8 p.m. in the Lodge Room at 17, Queen's Road, Central.

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

Boycotting A Fair

The municipality of Tel-Aviv, where the High Commissioner of Palestine has opened the Levant Fair, is the only entirely Jewish town in the world.

The Holy Land is in the midst of a boom. The Zionists call it a "boom," for they are anxious to make it out to be a natural rather than an artificial development.

This Levant Fair is being boycotted by most Palestinians. Simultaneously the Arabs are holding in Jerusalem a fair of their own.

Before the war Tel-Aviv was a hamlet set on sand dunes. Now it can claim to be at once the most thriving and ugliest town in the Levant.

Explaining Spain

The Spanish Government are sending one of their most distinguished professors to explain the new Spain to Britons.

He is Don Fernando de los Rios, an ex-Minister of Justice, Education, and Foreign Affairs, and now Professor at the University of Madrid.

Don Fernando is a former student of the London School of Economics. He speaks fluent English and has lectured in the United States.

He will give four lectures in London, one in Oxford, and one in Cambridge.

Professor Pastor, of the Department of Spanish Studies at London University, who inspired the visit, is the Prince of Wales's Spanish tutor. He prides himself that Spanish is now the Prince's best foreign language.

Sailor Of Fortune

Admiral John Taylor, to whom a monument was unveiled in Rio de Janeiro recently by the Minister of the Brazilian Navy, fought at Trafalgar as a midshipman.

In 1821 he went out to Brazil. He was so taken with the country that he adopted Brazilian nationality.

In the War of Independence he gained a signal victory over a Portuguese squadron at Bahia, chased them across the Atlantic, and bombarded Lisbon.

His grandson is Counsellor of the Brazilian Embassy in London.

NEPAL IS ENGLAND'S BEST ALLY

MISLEADING TITLE OF "FORBIDDEN" COUNTRY INACCESSIBLE BUT HOSPITABLE

(By Patrick Balfour.)

THE news that the son of the Maharaja of Nepal has presented a decoration to His Majesty the King, with the ultimate view of establishing a Nepalese Legation in London, has in all probability failed to move the average man in any degree.

Asiatic geography, outside the British Empire, has never been his strongest subject. And of Nepal it is improbable that he has more than the haziest mental picture. I have even known "authorities," who ought to know better, refer to her as one of India's native states. Of course she is nothing of the kind. Nepal is an independent kingdom in the Himalayas, slightly larger than Portugal, boasting Everest itself, and marching with India on the South and Tibet on the North. By means of this new Legation we will be brought into closer contact with quite one of the most remarkable countries in the East.

Nepal is one of those countries which suffers from being described as "forbidden." The word conjures up something quaintly primitive but, at the same time, distinctly homicidal. It would be grotesque to attribute any such tendencies to Nepal, which in any case is no more forbidden than, say, Chatsworth. She is better described as a "private" country. The Maharaja, who is a complete, though benevolent, autocrat, only invites selected friends to cross his frontier. Not a European soul can enter Nepal without his consent. Thus the commercial traveller and the uncommercial tourist, the political explorer, each more undesirable to a true Erewhonian than the last, are firmly barred. But as I know from recent experience, whoever receives an invitation finds hospitality which puts Europe to shame.

One European Engineer

The Maharaja of Nepal will not build roads to his capital. For roads mean engineers, and engineers mean Europeans, and Europeans in the East are like balliffs: when once you get them into a country it is the devil's own job to get them out again. There is but one European engineer in Nepal, and the work he does in the way of bridge-building and electrification is quite sufficient for a people who seek the mean between comfort and seclusion.

The journey to the capital, Katmandu, is in the best Erewhon tradition. It would be hard to imagine paths more stony and vertiginous than those I followed, on precarious pony-back, for two days. Finally I reached the top of the last pass and stood still with astonishment. There, spread far below me like a soft pile carpet, was the great wide valley of Katmandu. The view from Samuel Butler's own last range could not have equalled it.

During the next few days I was to undergo repeated shocks of astonishment.

The motorcars, for instance, hundreds of them, last American makes, speeding over smooth, wide boulevards. How did they get there? By the same path as myself, each carried by eighty coolies. Certainly the loads I had seen them carrying—huge baskets suspended by a band from the forehead, containing stones, merchandise, heavy bits of furniture and probably a mother-in-law perched on top of the lot—were phenomenal.

The modern palaces, nearly thirty of them, residences of the Maharaja and his family, built in imposing classical style for all the world like Carlton House-terrace.

Splendour Of State

I was whisked straight from my mountain pony to a Durbar, where the Maharaja and his family were assembled in full regalia, with headaddresses of emeralds too big to be true (but true), in a setting of mirrors, chandeliers, and other wise unparalleled magnificence. The army, perpetually drilling on a large parade ground. There is no better soldier than the wily little Gurkha, and since Nepal was conquered by his race in 1768, she has boasted one of the finest national armies in Asia.

The administration. For Nepal has both a King and a Maharaja, but the king is a cipher, primarily of religious importance, a figurehead like the Mikado, seldom seen.

I was privileged to see him once: a pale young man in pince-nez, with a tendency to embonpoint, wearing a frock coat and a huge white flower in his buttonhole. The absolute ruler of the country is the Maharaja, or hereditary Prime Minister, of splendid Rajput stock, a hard worker, and enlightened despot, with a passion for tiger-shooting and a horror of democracy. Nor does the succession pass, as a rule, from father to son, but to the eldest surviving member of the ruling family, provided he be of pure descent. Thus dangerous minorities are avoided.

Surprising Religion

But the most surprising feature of Nepal is neither her modern amenities nor the splendour of her crown jewels, neither her system of Government, nor her capacity as a fighting race, but her religion. For it is unique. Not only did the Mohammedan conquest fail to penetrate her mountain fastnesses, so that the country has never known religious warfare, but Buddhism from the north and Hinduism from the south met in Nepal, and, instead of fighting, shook hands.

Here, as in no other country in the world, the two religions dovetail one into the other in a perfect blend. Hindu and Buddhist, worshipped in the same temples, where Shiva and Buddha sit side by side; a Chinese pagoda roof shelters a Hindu shrine; thousands of Buddhas, carved in terra-cotta, form the decoration of a cone-shaped Hindu tower.

The effect of the combined inspiration of the two religions on the art and architecture of Nepal is incredible. In fact, I will go so far as to say that Katmandu is the most beautiful city in all the East. The prevalent architectural style is of the two, three, or five-roofed pagoda, which is believed to have existed in Nepal before it was adopted by the Chinese. These buildings are of soft red brick and teak wood, and the carving, in wood, stone and metal, which decorated them, is unsurpassed in quantity and quality even in the Italy of the Renaissance for the wealth beauty of its workmanship. Nepal is unique also in that her domestic architecture is as fine as her temples. Thus I found in her cities none of the drabness which no often detracts from the beauties of the East.

FAMOUS OUTLAW FIGHTER DEAD

Terror Of Western "Bad-Men."

"EAGLE EYE" WARREN

Seattle, Washington.

The death has occurred of Joe E. "Eagle Eye" Warren, famous outlaw fighter of the old West, who survived at various times during his 74 years of life the bullets of 14 bad men, and who became the terror of the law-breakers.

Mr. Warren, who stood six feet four inches tall, recently had his left foot amputated as a result of an old injury. Until he became ill, he weighed about 14st. 4lbs.

When he was five, a year after the end of Civil War, his family crossed the plains from Sullivan County, Missouri, and settled at Walla Walla, Washington.

Fifty years ago he became Spokane's first policeman. "Eagle Eye" joined the gold rush to Alaska, and then the Department of Justice. Later, he served as police chief of Seattle under four mayors. He organised a detective agency, and later became deputy sheriff. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Ida B. Warren.—Reuter.

MERRIE ENGLAND

Philharmonic Society
Venture.

MR. ANDERSON MILLER NEW MUSICAL LEADER

A General Meeting of the Philharmonic Society was held on Friday last, in St. John's Cathedral Hall. Professor W. Brown, the newly elected President presided over a fair attendance of members, including Mr. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, the retiring President, and Sir William Hornell, a past President.

Professor Brown addressed the meeting at considerable length on the troubles of the past and the prospects for the future. He laid particular emphasis on the apparent hopelessness of making any stage-production pay its way until a new City Hall provides local amateurs with a theatre, suitable in size and equipment, at a cost which will not, at the outset, guarantee a heavy deficit.

Free Mandate

A general discussion followed the address, various suggestions for future productions being considered. Finally the meeting gave to the new President and committee a free mandate to organise the activities of the Society during the season 1934-5.

Since then events have moved rapidly and it has now been decided to produce, in November next, the Concert Version of "Merrie England" under the baton of Mr. J. Anderson Miller, L.R.A.M.

It will be recalled that one of the Society's most notable successes in the past was the stage production of "Merrie England" in 1927, when Lt. Commander A. S. Bedells R.N., produced and played the leading role as Walter Wilkins. Most light operas depend upon their music for popularity, the plot frequently being thin; and uninteresting.

"Merrie England" makes a double appeal, the genius of Edward German giving it the wonderful sequence of tuneful choruses, solos, duets, trios and quartettes, and, in addition, the libretto of Basil Hood recalls vividly glamorous days of Raleigh and Good Queen Bess.

Vast Experience.

Mr. Anderson Miller has had considerable experience of Choral work, together with a contagious enthusiasm. The production should be a delight to all who participate, either principals or chorus, to all other supporters.

The venue of the Production has not yet been decided, but the nature of the production will allow it to be produced in either Kowloon or Hong Kong. The committee anticipate a substantial increase in membership, and an influx of fresh talent. The society is passing through a period of difficulty, but there is, among its members, a general feeling of optimism and confidence in the society.

It is hoped to commence choral practices early in September, but regarding this a further announcement will be made later.

Season's Programme.

The programme for the remainder of the Season 1934-5 has still to be determined, but it may be regarded as certain that at least one other concert (of a different type) will be given, and quite possibly two under the same or another conductor.

It will greatly facilitate the immediate work of the committee if all Vice-Presidents, Subscribing and Ordinary Members of the society will kindly send in their subscriptions at their earliest convenience. The new Hon. Secretary is Mr. R. A. Bates, of the Y.M.C.A., the Hon. Treasurer is Mr. H. M. Cooke, c/o Harbour Office while Mr. J. Anderson Miller, the Hon. Conductor, resides at the Claremont Hotel, Kowloon.

Gasper—Westland.

Sir Thomas Southern K.B.E. will give the bride away at Saturday's wedding at the Union Church, Kennedy Road, of Miss Dorothy Westland and Mr. Arthur Gasper. Lady Southern will be among the distinguished guests who will be present at the wedding ceremony.

Modern Soldiers Of Fortune

Los Angeles. Two modern soldiers of fortune who appear to be on the verge of becoming multi-millionaires are Clark F. McGilvray (left) and Macon Brammer, pictured arriving in the United States on the s.s. Santa Ana after striking a three-quarter-mile vein of gold in Northern Nicaragua. As soon as assays of their ore are completed they will return to their rich discovery in the mountains near San Juan De la Mar. The men are former Colorado miners who went to Nicaragua on a "hunch". McGilvray is a tank corps hero of the Battle of St. Michel.

FATALITY ATTENDS
ARMED ROBBERY

Woman's Death Jump
To Escape.

ANOTHER SHAMSHUPO WOMAN
STABBED WITH SCISSORS

An armed robbery, in which one woman was killed and another injured, occurred yesterday at No. 1, Wong Chok Street, Shamshupo, 2nd floor. Four men have been arrested.

Wong Sin-man, 29-year-old woman, owner of the property, was visited by the leader, who asked to rent a flat.

He later returned with three other men, whom he left at the door, and forced his way in. When he managed to get inside he drew a pair of scissors and came to grips with Wong, who managed to slip from his grasp and run out on to the verandah. When she noticed that she was being followed she jumped over the verandah railings and fell to the road, breaking her spine.

Another woman, Chan Sze, from the same house, ran down the stairs blowing a whistle. She was later found with an abdomen wound inflicted by the pair of scissors.

Both women were admitted to the Kowloon Hospital, Wong Sin-man dying shortly afterwards.

Post Office Barometer Indicates
British Recovery

Office had received, sorted and delivered 100,000,000 more letters than during the previous year, and was now selling some 20,000,000 stamps every day.

The time had come, he said, for a substantial reduction in telephone charges in order to stimulate the widest possible development of the service, and this would take effect in October, when other important modifications in the conditions of that service would be made.

There was an increase in 1933 of £21,000,000 in the savings Bank balances, and the balance due to depositors with accrued interests, had now reached the remarkable figure of £38,000,000.

The General Improvement warranted capital expenditure in Post Office development during the current year of £34,000,000, an increase of £2,000,000 over last year's expenditure, to be spent mainly on telephonic and telegraphic services.

It was the settled policy of the Post Office to use air service wherever practicable, and question of air service was being considered by the Governments concerned. The development of air services in Britain itself was being carefully studied.

Referring to broadcasting, he said that on March 31 there were over 6,500,000 wireless licences in force.—British Wireless Service.

To-day's Short Story.

EARTH'S SECRET

By Lord
Dunsany

WE had a talk one day at the club of a highly scientific nature. Such a talk may be interesting, and certainly instructive, if there is only one scientist talking. He has to make himself clear to the rest. But on this day there were two of them. That may appear to have made it twice as interesting—as a matter of fact it was the dullest talk I have heard in the club for a long time.

You see they each knew what the other was talking about so that there was no necessity to make themselves any clearer. And being on their own subject they soon got very keen, and there was no stopping them. It was all very tedious. They were on the age-old theme of the alchemists, but were giving modern and very learned reasons why the dream of the alchemists was impossible.

Base metals, they were saying, could never be turned into gold; but I have said that their talk was tedious, bad enough for us in the club where we couldn't escape it, but unthinkable for my reader, who can fly from such things by a mere flick of the page. So I will tell the tale from the moment at which any brightness came into it, any meriment, any audacity; and not, I hope, without some advantage to science.

It was when Jorkens spoke, on top of their weighty reasons against the making of gold. "I made some once," he said.

"You made some?" they said together.

"A small pot-full," said Jorkens. Then we all asked him how it was, and so we got his story.

"Some while ago, in Asia, far up a mountain," said Jorkens, "a man was living alone, higher up than the monkeys and higher than all the villages. And when I came once in any travels to his curious pagoda-like house...."

"Where was it?" asked Terbut.

"He made me swear not to reveal it," Jorkens answered, "but the oath was not very binding on account of his having sworn me by gods for whom I have little respect, disgusting gods really; the things they used to do and take a delight in doing, if the tales about them were true! The things people sang about them! Well let's forget them. The oath can't have been binding. It isn't that that stops me from telling you."

PORTUGUESE YOUTH
BLAMELESS.

Alleged To Be Without Bicycle Lamp.

Joseph Pulisa, 19-year-old Portuguese boy, of 3 Canarvon Road, pleaded not guilty to a charge of having ridden a bicycle in Nathan Road without a lamp at 9.10 p.m. on Wednesday night, and was discharged by Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

Defendant said that the was not riding the bicycle at the time.

MANICURING WITH LARGE KNIFE.

Demonstration That Failed.

Chan Hung, a 35-year-old unemployed Chinese was sentenced to two months hard labour by Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for having in possession of a large Chinese knife for an unlawful purpose.

Defendant stated that he used it to cut his finger nails with, but when asked for a demonstration he was unable to do so.

TWO MORE DOGS GO
UNMUZZLED.

Europeans Fined In Kowloon.

Mr. C. B. Easterbrook, of 99 Waterloo Road, was fined $8 by Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for allowing his dog in the streets on May 15 without a muzzle.

Mrs. E. Schuster, of 55 Canton Road, was also fined $8 on a similar charge.

"But the world, you know, is contracting a bit as it cools; little enough if you take the whole bulk of it, but it plays the devil with the crust; wrinkles it, bores holes in it, and one thing and another. You know they've got a theory that the Andes are moving slightly, away from the Himalayas, and that that is the cause latterly of a good deal of the subsidence and upheavals that have been recorded on seismographs."

"Are we going to have some more science?" said Terbut.

And I admit that he voiced the apprehensions of most of us.

"Briefly," said Jorkens, "that mountain is now a volcano."

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "Pompeii In Massachusetts,"
by Louis Golding.

"Oh," said Terbut, and was silent; for he was not the intrepid traveler that Jorkens was.

"But in those days," Jorkens continued, "it was a snow-capped mountain, with the man I was telling you of living just at the edge of the snow, bits of it running along ravines far under him, and his goats wandering about, which, with a few lean-looking chickens, seemed all that he had for sustenance, besides a very small patch of cabbages, and the mountain streams. There he lived and grew a narrow and very long beard and, I suppose, meditated. I was able to do him a small service, in exchange for which he gave me a kind of little note-book of thin leaves covered with figures. It was in fact the secret of making gold."

"A small service?" said Terbut.

"Well," said Jorkens, "it was easily done."

"And he gave you the secret of gold for it?"

"Yes, certainly," replied Jorkens. But we could all see that he was getting embarrassed.

"You must have been of great service to him," said Terbut.

"No, no," said Jorkens, "it was nothing much. Not at all."

We have not often seen Jorkens embarrassed, and the hunting sense in Terbut, if you can call it by any so sporting a name, was much excited by it; so that he soon got out of Jorkens what that small service had been. He wavered for a moment between bare truth and his amour propre, and then blurted out the bare truth.

"He told me," said Jorkens, "that he was bound by his religion to give me food and shelter, but that, if I would go at once without demanding his hospitality, he would give me the secret of gold. Evidently not a very friendly fellow. No herd instinct, I mean. And giving me the secret of gold meant nothing to the contrary, because I could see by his face as he gave me the little bundle of pages that he regarded it as the root of all evil; a kind of contemptuous look as he gave me the secret."

"And another thing that I didn't like about the fellow was the serenity that seemed to come on his face when I accepted his book and left, a nasty sort of calm and a glow in his eyes. But never mind that; I knew I had the best of the bargain, and, if he didn't like me, I didn't like his long thin dark beard, going grey at the edges, or the way he lived, or dressed, or anything whatever about him."

"Who ever heard of green silk up a mountain! Yet, whatever rot his meditations were, or his philosophy and all that, his recipe for the making of gold was perfectly sound. I didn't know much Tibetan, the language in which he wrote it, and I had to get it translated bit by bit so as not to awake suspicions, which took a long time, but I soon saw what he was driving at; the main idea was simple enough; it was merely that to make an element you need all the other elements. There are about 40 of them; take away one and the remainder all together will make up the missing one." I believe a similar law holds good with colours.

"But it wasn't anything like as easy as it may sound, because all those elements had to be blended in the most exact proportions, according to their various weights, so that

Took Death Before Disgrace

Bowed in grief, Mrs. Mary Struzick and her daughter are pictured in their Boston home after they received news that their son and brother, Alfred (inset) had committed suicide in the Boston police station where he was held after arrest for picking flowers for a girl friend in the Public Gardens.

A. F. KIPPAX (N.S.W.).—Age 34. Most stylish bat in Australia. Has captained New South Wales for several seasons. With Hooker, holds last-wicket record partnership of 307 made versus Victoria in 1928, his share being 260 not out. Visited England in 1930. Scored 1,514 runs, 4 centuries, for average of 56.07. Scored 329 in Tests—average 54.83.

C. V. GRIMMETT (South Australia).—Age 42. Made his reputation during 1930 tour of England. Took 29 Test wickets for average of 39.89, and all ten Yorkshire wickets for 37. Comparatively a failure in the last series of Tests in Australia. Picked because of his proved effectiveness on English wickets.

W. J. O'REILLY (N.S.W.).—Age 29. Star bowler of the last series of Tests. Impeccable length, spin, and variation of flight and pace. Took 27 Test wickets for 27.25 each. Tall, well-built, right-hand, medium-pace with ball that straightens up from the leg, or whips back from the off at great pace. Greatest bowling find since Grimmett.

L. DARLING (Victoria).—Age 25. A dashing left-hand bat of whom great things are expected. When 19 scored 37 and 96 against New South Wales. Until last season, in and out of the States side, but now the backbone of the team. Well built. Takes plenty of risks. Also a useful right-hand medium pace bowler and a brilliant field. In two Tests against Jardine's men, scored 148 for average of 37.

E. H. BROMLEY (Victoria).—Age 21. Brilliant left-hand batsman and useful medium-pace left-hand bowler. Did well against the South Africans, was offered professional job in England, but preferred Australia. A brilliant fieldman in any position. Promises to be one of the all-rounders Australia need. Played in the fourth Test against England, but scored only 26 and 7 and was dropped for the last Test.

T. W. WALL (South Australia).—Age 29. Australia's fast bowler, but not to be compared in speed with Larwood. In England in 1930 took 37 wickets at an average of 29.03. Takes a very long run. Headed Test averages against Jardine's side with 16 wickets at 26.37. Will bear brunt of Australia's attack.

H. I. EBBELING (Victoria).—Age 29. Forced his way into team by fine bowling feats. His best figures: 5 for 66, 5 for 72, and 4 for 42. Medium-pace bowler with easy run up to the wicket. Had a hat-trick against Queensland, and 7 for 33. Tall, bowler at a good pace, comes off the pitch sharply, can turn the ball in from the off and make it swing away. Accurate length. Fairly good bat.

W. A. BROWN (N.S.W.).—Age 21. One of Australia's most promising opening batsmen, scored double century in the last Sheffield Shield match when runs were needed. Jumped into the lime-light when he stayed at the wickets for over two and a half hours in scoring 69 against Jardine's team, out of a total of 180. Best scoring strokes are hook and the cut.

needed. Jumped into the lime-light when he stayed at the wickets for over two and a half hours in scoring 69 against Jardine's team, out of a total of 180. Best scoring strokes are hook and the cut.

L. O'B. FLEETWOOD-SMITH (Victoria).—Age 24. Left-arm googly bowler. Originally right-hand fast. Changed to left hand because he strained his right arm. Developed rapidly. Against South Africa he took 6 for 80, and against South Australia 7 for 101 and 4 for 19. Was punished by Hammond during last tour when he hit double century against Victoria.

Slow bowler mainly offbreaks, but fair over-spinner and a good "wrong-un".

W. A. OLDFIELD (N.S.W.).—Age 36. World's best wicket-keeper. Small and dapper. Takes the ball cleanly. Is extraordinarily active on the leg side. As a batsman not much more than a tallender.

S. J. McCABE (N.S.W.).—Age 23. Attractive batsman, and a rival in popularity to Bradman. Also a splendid fast-medium bowler. Probably the finest all-rounder in Australia. Recently had operation for appendicitis. One of the few to master Larwood when he scored 187 not out in the first Test. Scored 385 at average of 42.77 in Tests against Jardine's team. Has represented Australia in four Test "rubbers." Defence not as sound as it might be, and has a tendency to "go" for the bowling. Bowls a deceptive slow ball, and dangerous with new ball. A brilliant field in any position.

B. J. BARNETTE (Victoria).—Age 35. A good wicket-keeper and left-handed batsman. Quick on his feet and takes ball well on the leg side.

W. H. PONSFORD (Victoria).—Age 35. Scored 429 (then world's record) in his first appearance against Tasmania, and in 1927 scored 437 against Queensland. Only batsman with two scores of over 400. Been to England in 1926 and 1930, and did well on both occasions. Not in good form last season and scored only 141 in three Tests.

E. A. CHIPPERFIELD (New South Wales).—Age 27. Has shown great promise as an all-rounder. In his first appearance for his State scored 84 against Queensland. Cricket coach at Newcastle. Scored a magnificent 152 for Northern Districts against D. R. Jardine's team. As a bowler is looked upon as ultimate successor to Grimmett.

PHENOMENON OF CRICKET

Bradman's eye is quick and his balance perfect. He has very small hands, but his forearm is all power, and the muscle between his right thumb and first finger abnormal. It sticks out like a hard cushion. What is Bradman's future? Is he destined to break his own record? Will he one day play an himself.

Innings of 600 or 700? Remember he is only 25, and, given good health, he should have at least fifteen more years of cricket before him.

Bradman looks every inch a cricketer. He is scrupulously neat and smart in his turnout, and he plays the game with rare zest and enjoyment. Above all, he possesses both character and brains. Bradman, indeed, bats like no one else. He is a genius—a law unto himself.

Survivors of Family Poisoned by Father

Mrs. Chester Barrett of Sapulpa, Okla., pictured with her four surviving children after the entire family had been given strychnine poison by the father, a poverty-stricken P. E. R. A. worker, who confessed to the deed. Three of the children died and one is not expected to recover. The father told the authorities that he could not supply food for the family.

STABBED, SHOT AND STRANGLED

Gangsters Kill Victims Three Ways.

BODIES FOUND IN CREEK

Wilmington, Delaware.
The bodies of two Philadelphia racketeers have been found in a little ice-choked creek three miles from Wilmington.
They had been stabbed, shot and strangled. Their bodies were wrapped in a blanket and fastened together by a sashcord bound around their necks. In their hands were found the underworld's symbol of chiselling, a penny.
The bundle had apparently been tramped from a car on the bridge over a small tributary to the creek. In the opinion of the chief of police of Chester, Pennsylvania, the men were tortured before they were killed.
Four men, known as beer distributors, have been held in connection with the murders.—Reuter.

LIGHTNING STRIKES LOFTIEST BELL.

Miraculous Escape For Congregation.

Kottayam (S. India).
A large congregation attending Mass in a Roman Catholic Church near Ettumamur, a few miles from here, had a miraculous escape when the bell tower was struck by lightning.
A 40-year-old man who was in the belfry at the time was killed on the spot.
The tallest in the whole of Travancore State and even taller than the lighthouse in Alleppy, this tower stands 120 feet high. It was erected at a cost of over £2,500 and now is damaged beyond repair.—Reuter.

NEPAL IS ENGLAND'S BEST ALLY.

Happy Marriage

That the Hindu-Buddhist marriage has been a happy one is evident from the demeanour of the Nepalese. They are an essentially human race. Combined with the vitality of Hinduism in its prime they have the Buddhist's calm and contemplative philosophical spirit. Moreover, they are born of another union besides the religious: the racial. They are part Gurkha and part Newari: that is to say, part soldier and part artist.
There is no doubt that Nepal, her dual racial and religious factors knit together, its national pride and independence stimulated by her ambitious Rajput rulers, is a country with a future.

There are only two precedents for visit to Europe by a member of the Prime Minister's family: the first in 1850, when the Maharaja Jang Bahadur visited the Court of Queen Victoria; the second when the late Maharaja Chandra Shum Shere visited King Edward in 1908. Thus the recent visit of General Bahadur Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana, is a great occasion.

the total weight of all of them should be precisely the weight of the same bulk of gold; without that, I was warned, the experiment would be not only useless but dangerous. And the calculation of all those weights was, as you may suppose, intensely elaborate. That's what the book was about.

"Well, as soon as I got to understand the book and to understand the queer names he had for the elements, it was easy to follow the figures, their numerals being no harder to read than ours.

"So that it was not necessary for me to take the tedious and dangerous course of making a copy in English; dangerous not only because there is twice as much risk of theft when you have two copies, but because an English copy could be so readily understood by anybody who stole it. I didn't want another man going about making gold; it would have cut prices.

"Well, I got out of that country as soon as I had the thing clear and I got it clear without any native suspecting what the scraps and lines he translated could be about, and that wasn't too easy, for they begin on suspicion before you've started to talk to them, and they are all of them pretty neat in following it up. "I never had the papers out of my reach until I got to London; in my pocket or under my pillow, night and day. It was a packet of 80 pages or so, very thin paper, about four inches by three, just like a little notebook without a cover. I met no one with whom I'd have trusted it till I got home, as I used to call the lodgings I had down Wimbledon way.

"And there was my old landlady in the doorway as I came up the path. She was delighted to see me back, if I may say so, though it could only have been the reflection of my pleasure at seeing her, for what had I ever done for Mrs. Mergins? Whereas she had brought comfort into my life whenever I was in England.

"She was a very soothing influence in the house; more than that—from her there seemed to radiate an orderliness and a quiet which, but for her, would have been replaced by litter and a perpetual searching for papers. A woman with a quiet face, going grey. I had been her first lodger and she had asked me to name her house for her because she didn't like a mere number. There was some opposition at first to the name I chose, even criticism among the neighbours near Wimbledon, but it was no affair of theirs and she seemed to me so perfect a landlady, so truly the very type of our English lodging-house-keeper that I could think of no other name. I called it Sea View.

"With the details of the furniture of Sea View I shall not trouble you. You have probably seen plenty like it. For myself I think it is a beautiful thing that there should be people, after all these years, really to love plush.

"Better? Why?" I asked.
"No dates in it," replied Jorkens. "Well, this bowl was kept as silver ought to be kept, except that it was cleaned far too often. Always bright, always shining, whether I was at home or not, it stood always on the same table, giving a certain air to the room, and never dented or scratched since Mrs. Mergins first handled it. So that when I entered Sea View and saw Mrs. Mergins and gave her that little bundle of thin Tibetan paper, the first person with whom I would trust it after coming 8,000 miles, the actual words I used, and they are important, were: 'Keep it as you keep my silver bowl. It is much more valuable.'

"Those were my exact words, and I couldn't have made them stronger, because the value that Mrs. Mergins had chosen to place on my bowl was beyond all reason as the care that she took of it was beyond praise.
"Well, I hadn't been home many days when I had all the elements bought, and soon I was tediously weighing them out in their exact proportions. I remember the day I put them all into the saucepan and lit an enormous fire and handed back the papers into Mrs. Mergins's safe keeping. The work before me, the melting down of a pound of mixed metals, was nothing compared with the calculations of days and days, with the Tibetan figures beside me on the table opposite the minutest scales, in which I weighed everything to the fractions of grammes.

"When that quiet work was over the active work with the roaring fire and the bellows, however uncomfortable, seemed to me like a holiday. My mind was muzzy with those calculations, and somehow the blazing heat on my face seemed rather to clear it than otherwise. You've no idea of the thousands of figures that I had had to plod through. But never mind that now; the results of those calculations were all in the pot and the pot was gradually glowing.
"My eyes were sore, my face was dripping, my fingers were actually burnt, and still the metals in the pot, though turning white, remained solid. I had made the room like a stove-hole. And all of a sudden the metals collapsed and ran into liquid. It happened so swiftly that I had no receptacle ready. I couldn't keep the gold in the saucepan; Mrs. Mergins would want it for cooking.

"I looked round, holding the handle with a duster and my hand burning through that, and my eye fell on the bowl; Mrs. Mergins's beloved object, my silver bowl. I knew that the molten mass was sure to spoil it, but I think I was rather amused by the idea of spoiling a thin piece of silver with solid gold. I wondered what Mrs. Mergins would say when she saw what it was that had tarnished it. And I was wondering how much to melt the bowl and turned red and cooled and was yellow—and I saw that I had made gold.
"And was it gold?" said Terbut.
"Certainly," answered Jorkens. "A pound weight of it."

"Did you go on making it?"
asked Terbut.

Jorkens rubbed his chin.
"It was exactly what I meant to do," said Jorkens. "I took a few hours rest before going back to that awful work on the figures, and then I went to my landlady and said: 'Where are the papers?' That was the way I put it this time, though I usually asked her to be so kind as to get them. I don't know what impulse it was that made me say 'Where are the papers?' And she said, 'In the silver bowl.'"

"I could only say 'What,' and she repeated it and added, 'Where you told me to put them.'
"Of course I'd never... Oh well—Walter!"
There are times when Jorkens, for all the brilliancy of his memory, deliberately forgets the past.

EXECUTION GUARANTEES

The Political Commission, it was also urged, should proceed with the consideration of the question of supervision, and devise guarantees of execution. The Air Committee is requested to study the possibility of the internationalisation of civil aviation, the abolition of air bombardments, and the reduction of military air forces etcetera. The Committee on the manufacture of, and trade in, arms is requested to resume its study of the solution of the problem in the light of a statement made by the United States delegation on May 30.

PARALLEL WORK

These three Commissions should work on parallel lines, co-ordinated by the Bureau. The resolution also asks Mr. Henderson to submit the proposal of Monsieur Litvinoff for a permanent peace conference to the Governments for their consideration.

After a short discussion, in which Mr. Norman Davis, United States delegate, asked for a brief adjournment to consider these proposals, the Bureau adjourned until tomorrow morning, and the General Commission will be summoned to-morrow afternoon.—British Wireless Service.

CONGRESS ACCORD ON RECIPROCAL TARIFF BILL

Important Senate Amendments
Accepted By House

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received June 7, 9.32 a.m.)

Washington, To-day.
Congressional action on the United States Reciprocal Tariff Bill was completed yesterday when the House of Representatives by 154 votes to 53 decided to accept the Senate amendments, firstly, limiting trade agreements to three years, and secondly, a provision to advance notice to industries when the duties are to be changed by executive order.—United Press, per S.C. Gold Bar Co.

LUMP SUM BASIS

He believed that every attempt had been made to reach an agreement to end the present war debt situation, and remarked that it was generally forgotten that Britain depended for payments to America on receiving such an amount from foreign countries. So long as war debts were not dealt with, however, they cast their shadows and no one felt certain of what was going to happen.

Lord Ellbank congratulated the Government on their note and declared that it presented a convincing case in support of the policy pursued by the Government.

Earl Stanhope, replying, said that the Government had always separated war debts from ordinary debts, which occupied an entirely different category. He assured the House that at every favourable opportunity the Government had raised the question at Washington with a view to reaching a war debt agreement, and they were still ready to discuss the subject when a suitable moment arrived. The Government had not repudiated the debt.

STABILISED EXCHANGES

With regard to exchanges, the view of the Government was that the whole question of stabilisation must depend on the improvement of prices relative to the capital cost of goods, and once that result could be achieved, they might look forward to exchanges once more becoming more stabilised.

That was the policy the Government was pursuing, and they hoped to achieve some success in that direction.—British Wireless Service.

FURTHER GAINS ON WALL STREET

Business Still At Low
Figure.

SILVER BUYING CONTINUES

New York, To-day.
Further fractional gains were made on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, but business continued dull, only 650,000 shares being traded.

Industrials and rails were up .11 and .64 to 94.77 and 43.78, respectively, while bonds improved .07 to 94.06. Utilities were down .17 to 23.05, while the commodity index declined .12 to 57.23.

An undisclosed principal accounted for about 40 lots on the silver market. Commission houses did some small trade selling.

President Roosevelt has signed the Stock Exchange Control Bill.

In their market report, Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company, through their local correspondents, the American Oriental Finance Corporation, state:—

"Stocks: The market made further fractional gains. We think that, under the circumstances, it acts satisfactorily enough and as if there may be some expansion of the rally.

"Wheat: Further drought relief is forecast in the wheat areas and in Canada and in the North-West. This has disturbed holders and has checked the advancing tendency.

"Cotton: There was a good demand early in the day, including a large volume of Foreign purchases and speculative buying carried prices to a new high movement. The advance for July brought out Southern selling. There are unfavourable weather conditions in parts of the Eastern Belt."—Reuter.

COAL THIEVES WHO WAYLAY TRAINS

Unusual Menace In South Africa.

FOUR NATIVES ARRESTED

Johannesburg, (Transvaal).

"If engine drivers do not throw coal out for these thieves, they throw stones at the trains to break windows."

This description of the methods of coal thieves at Boksburg East station was given by the prosecutor, Mr. S. G. Lockwood Hill, in the Boksburg Court, when four natives were found guilty of stealing coal from the railway.

"They have also been known to put pieces of iron and stones in the points of the railway line," said the prosecutor.

"Drivers seeing the obstruction pull up suddenly and the jerk shakes coal off the tender or trucks. The position has become so bad that engine drivers are afraid to drive along that section of the line."

John Davis (16), was ordered to receive six cuts with a cane. Two native women, Nellie and Bessie, were fined £2 (or 14 days) and £1 (or seven days), respectively and the fourth accused, Nollie, was ordered to come up for sentence within six months if called upon.—Reuter.
